

FITZ BROTHERS BIOGRAPHY

Great passion, red beards and a common vision. That's what connects the two brothers from northern Austria, Florian Sebastian and Felix Fitz.

After several individual musical projects, partly solo, partly in different bands, the two have now released several singles together ("Golden Trees", "Sunday", "Groggy", etc.) and developed more and more their very own sound. Stylistically, the duo moves somewhere between pop and indie, difficult to pin down, but therefore all the more exciting. In any case, they are always about more than just nice music - they're about feelings, passion and the human condition.

In their own words:

"Music has always been our way to sort out our thoughts and confront our emotions. It's a way of growing and helping others grow into greater human beings. We hope we can inspire you and give you some sort of experience that gets you more in touch with yourself. That's what music has always done. That's what it does for us."
